12:15 pm
To drive change around local issues such as housing, recreation, infrastructure renewal, and population growth, we need to build coalitions, or movements, around a shared value proposition that appeals to a variety of people and perspectives. No kidding. We all know that, but if we're honest, we often struggle to practice what we preach. In this workshop, Micha Fardy of non-profit Friends of Fundy & consultant Lisa Hrabluk of Wicked Ideas will explain how a cross-section of rural business and community members are building a values-based, solutions-focused regional partnership in the Upper Bay of Fundy.
